Around The Conference Church Fairs as Evangelism

by Rev. Scott D. Cleveland, Maine Area Representative

Church fairs are lingering traditions in many Congregational Churches. Their origins are mixed, and their message is sometimes ambivalent. But to some degree they are extensions of the “theology of the meetinghouse” — a place for worship, politics and wholesome entertainment. However, God can also use them to reach the lost and gather his sheep.

Last November, Second Congregational Church in Brewer, Maine set up an “outreach table” at its annual fair full of CCCC literature, Bibles, Christian literature and key information about our church — all of it free. Our goal was to present the gospel to those who might not otherwise have visited a church, and to attract those seeking an evangelical form of Congregationalism.

We had several fruitful conversations (amid bemused looks!) People weren’t quite expecting to see an evangelistic table at a church fair. But we feel that next year’s table will have an even deeper impact.

Bulgarian Sister Church Relationship Remains Strong

by Dr. Maurice Smith, Southern Illinois/Missouri Area Representative

For more than five years the CCCC has enjoyed a special relationship with churches in the Evangelical Congregational Union of Bulgaria. As pastor of First Congregational Church in Highland, Illinois, I recently had the privilege of visiting our sister church in Sliven, Bulgaria, for the second time. This relationship has existed from the beginning of the Conference’s partnership with the Union.

Pastor Stojan Slavchev and his wife Jana continue to provide tireless leadership to a strong, active church. Through Pastor Slavchev’s years of ministry there, they have planted more than fifteen churches in surrounding villages. It is a privilege to know that our church family in Highland supports a growing and vital work for the good of the Kingdom of God in Bulgaria.

If you are interested in establishing a sister-church relationship with a congregation in Bulgaria, feel free to call me at 618-654-4241 or e-mail me at fcchighland@charter.net. I’ll be happy to tell you how to get started.

Short-Term Haiti Youth Mission Begins August 2

by Rev. John Eklund, First Congregational Church of Pomfret, Connecticut

The CCCC youth work mission to Haiti is scheduled for August 2-12. Rev. John Eklund will lead the group, and he offers these comments on the mission.

With great pleasure and excitement I accepted the invitation of Rev. Clair Longuevan, Chairman of the CCCC Missions Committee, to lead the CCCC Youth Mission 2006 work team to Haiti. CCCC interest in this project began several years ago when I brought the “Partners with Haiti” display to an annual meeting. The work team schedule was full at the time, but interest was clear and we both sensed that God wanted us to expand our current “mission field.”

From the Conference Minister

Missions: GO, and PRAY!

Jesus commanded the church to go with the good news to the whole world. He said:

All authority in heaven and on earth has been given to me. Therefore go and make disciples of all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Spirit and teaching them to obey everything I have commanded you And surely I am with you always, to the very end of the age (Matthew 28:18-20).

He also specifically instructed His followers to pray for workers to be sent to the harvest field:

When he saw the crowds he had compassion on them, because they were harassed and helpless, like sheep without a shepherd. Then he said to his disciples "The harvest is plentiful but the workers are few. Ask the Lord of the harvest, therefore, to send out workers into his harvest field" (Matthew 9:36-38).

Rev. Dr. Stephen A. Gammon,
CCCC Conference Minister

August 6 of this year marks the 200th anniversary of what has been called the "Haystack Prayer Meeting," an event the Lord used to spark the birth of the first missions-sending agency in America, the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions (ABCFM). This movement began with praying students who were willing to go if the Lord should call them. When they heard His call they turned to the Congregational Church to enable them to go. The church began to pray and give, and the Lord brought in a rich harvest. Today, through the World Evangelical Congregational Fellowship, the CCCC is in fellowship with descendants of that missions movement in nations around the world.

Until the Lord Jesus returns we are to be fervently committed to missions for His glory and honor. He commands us to go and He commands us to pray. As in the beginning days of the ABCFM, there are those among us today who have heard the Lord's clear and personal call to go into the world with the good news of Jesus Christ, and they have turned to the church for help. In the CCCC we do not have a single missions-sending agency. Our member missionaries go out with various excellent organizations. Sadly, some of our CCCC missionaries struggle because of limited prayer and financial support. They are willing to do their part. Are we doing ours?

Our responsibility for missions remains the same as always! If we cannot personally go we must help send those who will go! And all of us are called to pray. If you have not been praying for our CCCC missionaries, would you please begin? And if you or your Congregation are not financially supporting any of our CCCC member missionaries, would you ask the Lord if He would have you begin, even in some small way? May God do among us what He did in the Congregational church two centuries ago – spark a fresh movement of prayer and missions!

Carlton's Comments

Available, But Not Indispensable

As I write this article for THE FORESEE, I am awaiting a series of radiation treatments over a six or seven week period which are scheduled to begin on May 24th. This is a procedure that was not being routinely done four years ago when I had surgery, but now it is. According to the doctors I am a very good candidate for this procedure, and they believe that it will be a long-term help for me.

During this time of waiting, God has been using the experience to teach me some spiritual lessons. I would like to pass along to you some of the truths that I am learning.

Perhaps the greatest privilege we have as believers is to be used by God as His instrument.

Whether it is dealing with us as individual Christians or whether He tries to encourage His Church to be all that it ought to be, God must have plenty of frustrations. God's people have never lacked the ability to create excuses why they cannot do something that He wants them to do.

In Exodus 3:4, Moses sounds willing to do anything for God when he first hears the Lord call to him. However, when God puts arms and legs on His request, suddenly Moses begins to balk. "I'm not the one to lead your people out of Egypt, God," he says. Remember God has been training him to do this very task for almost eighty years. When God promises to be with him and He explains everything that Moses is to do and say, Moses raises the possibility that the people will not believe him. God then gives him the ability to perform three miracles that would convince the people. Next, in verse 10, Moses complains that he is not a very accomplished speaker — to which God responds that He will help him speak what he has to say. Finally, in desperation, Moses blurts out, "Please send someone else!" When God sends Aaron to go with him, Moses finally relents.

Rev. Carlton Walker,
Northeast Regional Minister

Next, in verse 10, Moses

Similarly, when God called Gideon to rescue the Israelites, as recorded in Judges 6, Gideon complained that he came from the weakest tribe and that in his family he was the weakest of all the men. Still, God wanted him and promised, as He did to Moses, to be with him.

Yes, like Moses and Gideon I am much better at making up excuses why I cannot do something than I am in stepping out in faith and doing it! What excuses have you used when God has led you to do something for Him?

Once God is able to get us moving in serving Him, another problem develops. We begin to think that we are indispensable to the Lord. As I look ahead to six weeks of treatment, I begin to wonder, "How is the Lord going to accomplish His ministry in the Conference if I am out of commission for that period of time?" He will do it as He always has — in His way and with His instruments!

I encourage you as I encourage myself: Serve the Lord with all your heart, soul, mind and strength, but never forget that you are not indispensable to Him.

Rural Home Missionary Association Provides Help for Smaller Churches

by Rev. David F. Heidemann, Union Church of Monroe Center, Illinois

My wife Sylvia and I recently attended the Small-Town Pastor's Conference sponsored by the Rural Home Missionary Society (www.rhma.org) in Morton, Illinois. It was our first time to attend this conference, and we found it very helpful. The theme of the 2006 conference was "Celebrating the Impact" of small churches, rural churches and small-town churches.

There are vast differences between "rural" and "cosmopolitan" congregations and settings. To minister successfully, pastors must understand the dynamics involved in each setting. The small congregation succeeds most powerfully in the realm of personal relationships. As one speaker noted from his experience in a small church, "the pastor knew my name" and was able to disciple him. Large and mega-churches often fall short in this area.

My wife and I serve Union Church of Monroe Center (www.unionchurchmc.org), a community of approximately 550 people set amidst the cornfields of northern Illinois. At the conference we were encouraged to learn that we are approaching ministry in a way that is suitable to our community. We also gained helpful insights from the speakers and workshop leaders. Small churches and larger churches are different, not better or worse. The Lord of the Church will commend each congregation on its faithfulness, not on its size.

I recommend the RHMA conferences to our fellowship. Given the many congregations in the CCC located in small towns or rural areas, this is a valuable resource. We hope to attend next year (April 16-18 in Morton, or May 14- 6 in Lancaster, Pennsylvania).

Calvin Coolidge, Thirtieth President

by Richard C. Leonard, Ph.D., Co-Editor of THE FORESEE

President Calvin Coolidge and his wife Grace were regular Congregationalist churchgoers. One Sunday Mrs. Coolidge was ill, and the President attended church alone. Upon his return to the White House, Grace asked him what the minister had preached about. “Sin,” was Coolidge’s reply. “And what did he say about it?” asked Mrs. Coolidge. “He said he was against it,” answered the President.

Popular anecdotes like this about our laconic thirtieth President convey a false impression. A sparkling conversationalist he was not — he left that to Grace, the more social of the pair. But Coolidge was highly accessible. He met with reporters more frequently than any other President, and was the first to use radio to address the nation. Moreover, he was a man of depth and Christian principle.

John Calvin Coolidge, Jr., was born in 1872 in Plymouth Notch, Vermont, where he attended the Union Christian Church (established as Congregational). After graduation with honors from Amherst College, he entered the practice of law in Massachusetts and eventually was elected Governor as a Republican. When a strike by Boston policemen resulted in a crime wave, Coolidge ordered the National Guard to restore order along with civilian volunteers from nearby communities. (My grandfather, Don M. Leonard, was one of them.) Coolidge’s statement, “There is no right to strike against the public safety by anybody, anywhere, anytime,” gained national attention and helped propel him to the Republican vice-presidential nomination in 1920 as running mate to Warren G. Harding. The Harding-Coolidge ticket won in a landslide.

In 1923, word of Harding’s sudden death reached Coolidge in the middle of the night while he was visiting his old home in Vermont, without telephone or electric service. By oil lamp, he was sworn in as President by his father, a justice of the peace.

Calvin Coolidge brought a character to the Presidency that helped restore integrity to the office after the Harding administration, plagued by allegations of corruption. As Governor of Massachusetts, Coolidge had supported some socially progressive causes such as wage and hours legislation, child labor laws, economic controls during World War I, and safety measures in factories. As President he refused to become involved in such matters because he believed they should be left to the states. Coolidge’s conservative philosophy of a limited role for the federal government resonates with evangelicals today who see Christian cultural values being eroded by imposition of alien standards at the national level, especially through the federal judiciary. Coolidge stated, “Perhaps one of the most important accomplishments of my administration has been minding my own business.”

For a president known for terseness Coolidge is remembered today for some remarkable statements, many of which reflect his Christian convictions. He said, “The foundation of our society and our government rests so much on the teaching of the Bible that it would be difficult to support them if faith in these teachings would cease to be practically universal in our country.” Again, he declared, “We do not need more law, we need more religion. We do not need more of the things that are seen, we need more of the things that are unseen.”

Most astonishing, perhaps, are the concluding words of Coolidge’s 1925 inaugural address: “America seeks no earthly empire built on blood and force. No ambition, no temptation, lures her to thought of foreign dominions. The legions which she sends forth are armed, not with the sword, but with the cross. The higher state to which she seeks the allegiance of all mankind is not of human, but of divine origin. She cherishes no purpose save to merit the favor of Almighty God.” Today, a President who suggested that America’s legions should be armed with the cross of Christ would be pilloried in the mainstream media.

While the Adamses, early United States Presidents, were Congregationalists, they were of the Unitarian tendency. Calvin Coolidge (1872-1933) was a Congregationalist of a different sort. He remains an inspiration for those who would engage the culture with Christian values through the political arena.

World Relief Takes Lead in Darfur Restoration

In the Darfur region of Sudan, 400,000 people have been killed and 2.5 million people displaced in a continuing ethnic struggle. A peace agreement signed recently is only a hopeful first step in ending this genocide. Prayer, financial help and advocacy are still needed to contribute to the restoration of Darfur.

I have been a member of Partners with Haiti (PWH) for more than eleven years, and president for the past seven. PWH is a mission organization committed to helping evangelical churches in Haiti expand and develop their ministries. I have led many work teams to Haiti during which we have built security walls, churches, Christian schools and, most recently, wooden school benches. I've preached often in Haiti, and led a Family Life Conference in Jeremie, in southern Haiti. These things explain my keen interest in the CCCC Haiti team.

*Construction on the grounds of AFCA
Village, Port-au-Prince, Haiti*

Haiti, the poorest country in our hemisphere, has recently seen great political and social unrest. Because of violence in the country and uncertainty about the safety of our team members, we had to cancel all but one of our scheduled work teams from the summer of 2005 until this past March. The trouble was due primarily to the exile of former President Aristide and the recent election of President Preval. Thankfully, a decline of violence and trouble has enabled us to lift the ban on work teams and two have gone to Haiti this spring.

During the August youth trip we plan to work at the AFCA (Association of Christian Women In Action) Village, a PWH project near Port-au-Prince where we are building a secondary school. We will be building student desks for the classrooms in this new school. If you are interested in joining, contact Clair Longuevan (970-243-9596, CLonguevan@cs.com) for an application. Carpentry skill or experience is not required — just a willing spirit to learn a few new skills and a servant's heart to work with, and minister to, the Haitian people.

If you have questions about PWH, the work team or the work we will be doing, please contact me, Pastor John Eklund at 860-617-3923 (cell) or 860-926-7381 (office), or e-mail me at johneklund@juno.com.

Project Hope: A Gulf Coast Hurricane Relief Effort

by Rev. John Eklund, First Congregational Church, Pomfret, Connecticut

The First Congregational Church of Pomfret, Connecticut, a CCCC church, has taken on a ministry to those affected by Hurricane Katrina on the Gulf Coast. Since January the church has sent three work teams to Bay St. Louis, Mississippi through its "Project Hope" program. More than 40 adults and teens have sacrificed time and money (at a cost of more than $500 each) to be part of this effort to help people recover from the devastation of last fall's hurricanes.

The first work team of 22 members went to Bay St. Louis in mid-January. They found that the people of the Gulf Coast have an enormous task ahead of them, but are determined to do whatever it takes to rebuild their lives. The team quickly saw that housing fell into three categories: homes damaged by floodwaters or wind that can be repaired (their residents living in FEMA trailers), homes beyond repair that must be demolished and rebuilt, and homes where only a slab or set of concrete steps remain. Many residents of the third category have relocated elsewhere, either temporarily or permanently. In most cases homes were either uninsured or underinsured for flood and wind damage.

The First Baptist Church of Bay Saint Louis, Mississippi has become a center for groups coming to help from all over the country. The church itself underwent extensive interior and exterior damage, including loss of its steeple, and its members have either suffered damage to their homes or lost them completely. Yet the congregation has converted its entire facility into a volunteer center, adding five tents for storage of supplies and two trailers for showers and feeding up to 200 volunteers at a time. A missionary from Worldwide Missions,

Inc. is in charge of matching the needs of local residents with the different work teams that keep coming to this church.

With most media attention focused on New Orleans, little is heard about the Gulf Coast of Mississippi and Alabama. With minimal help from anywhere else, the residents there are grateful that the work teams coming through the church all across the country that have not forgotten them. These teams are a source of much help and hope.

Since January, First Congregational Church of Pomfret has sent two more teams to continue the work of Project Hope. Teams have included not only church members but also college students and people from other towns in Connecticut, Massachusetts and New York. Whether or not you have a skill or trade, there is a way for everyone to be part of this ministry. For more information on how you can be part of Project Hope, call the First Congregational Church of Pomfret, 860-928-7381.

Project Hope volunteers pitch in to help the Gulf Coast after the devastation of Hurricane Katrina

A match grant from the Canadian Food Grain Bank has allowed World Relief to invest $2.6 million in Darfur. The current phase of this program ends in August. To leverage a new grant, World Relief needs to raise $200,000. Many CCCC churches and individuals have consistently supported the work of World Relief. Our Conference Minister, Dr. Stephen A. Gammon, is asking that we be made aware of this special need.

World Relief is suggesting the following action plan:

- PRAY for protection for the displaced people in Darfur and for World Relief staff, for a viable peace agreement and for U.S. and international influence to be brought to bear in stopping the genocide.

- EDUCATE yourself and your congregation. Current news about Darfur can be found at www.savedarfur.org/home and www.genocideintervention.net. For information about the Darfur Relief Collaboration, visit www.wr.org/newsstories/featurestories/view.asp?id=30000194.
- HOST a Darfur Awareness Sunday. Resources are available online or through World Relief.
- WRITE to your Congressmen and Senators. Share your concern that ending the genocide in Darfur should become a legislative priority.

By standing alongside Darfurians in these ways, you will enable World Relief and the Darfur Relief Collaboration to extend their time and capacity in Darfur.

CCCC People to Pray For

“We have not stopped praying for you . . .” (Colossians 1:9)

As a CCCC family let's be praying together for:

- The CCCC Annual Meeting in St. Cloud, Minnesota, July 17-20
- Anointing upon the annual meeting plenary speakers and workshop leaders
- Wisdom and blessing for the CCCC Board of Directors as they meet together
- Wisdom and blessing for our CCCC President Nick Granitsas
- Wisdom and blessing for our CCCC committees and all our Area Representatives
- Christ-centered unity and clear direction in our CCCC business meetings
- Biblical reconciliation and forgiveness for hurting congregations and ministers
- Strength, protection, and provision for all our CCCC missionaries
- Energy, guidance, and protection for all our CCCC chaplains
- A fresh wind of repentance and prayerfulness among CCCC churches and ministers

Promotions to Glory

Rev. Tillman Amstutz

Tillman F. Amstutz of Rochester, Minnesota was called home to glory on May 8, 2006, just three hours before his 88th birthday (born May 9, 1918). His ministerial career spanned more than 60 years in several denominations; he joined the CCCC in 1982. He pastored the Conservative Congregational Church in Hollandale, Minnesota for six years, after which he did pulpit supply in the Rochester area. Rev. Amstutz is survived by his wife Geraldine and four children, with their families.

Rev. Doris A. Way

Doris A. Way was called home to glory on February 26, 2006 at age 88. Born April 23, 1917, she married Dick Way in 1936 and that same year helped him establish the Crawford Street Congregational Church in Toronto, Ontario. During Dick's final illness (he died in 1957) Doris stepped into his pastoral role, continuing until her retirement in 2000. For a time Doris Way was one of only two female pastors in Toronto, and for many years was one of the few ordained women in the CCCC, which she joined in 1965. The Crawford Street Church closed on February 26, 2006. The Toronto Star wrote, "She died that afternoon, just a few hours after her loyal parishioners closed and locked the heavy wooden doors of Crawford St. Congregational Church for the last time."

Health Tips

Avian Influenza (Bird Flu)

Avian influenza is an infection caused by bird flu viruses. These viruses occur naturally among birds, generally waterfowl, but are occasionally transmitted to humans. Symptoms vary according to the virus, but can range from influenza-like symptoms (fever, cough, sore throat, muscle aches) to pneumonia and other severe complications. There is no vaccine currently available for avian flu. Protect yourself by avoiding any waterfowl or any bird showing signs of disease. Hand washing is the best preventative measure you can use.
